Кириш

Дастур Ўзбекистон Республикаси Президентининг 2015 йил 12 июндаги “Олий таълим муассасаларининг раҳбар ва педагог кадрларини қайта тайёрлаш ва малакасини ошириш тизимини янада такомиллаштириш чора-тадбирлари тўғрисида”ги ПФ-4732-сонли, 2017 йил 7 февралдаги “Ўзбекистон Республикасини янада ривожлантириш бўйича Ҳаракатлар стратегияси тўғрисида”ги ПФ-4947-сонли, 2019 йил 27 августдаги “Олий таълим муассасалари раҳбар ва педагог кадрларининг узлуксиз малакасини ошириш тизимини жорий этиш тўғрисида”ги ПФ-5789-сонли Фармонлари, шунингдек 2017 йил 20 апрелдаги “Олий таълим тизимини янада ривожлантириш чора-тадбирлари тўғрисида”ги ПҚ–2909-сонли қарорида белгиланган устувор вазифалар мазмунидан келиб чиққан ҳолда тузилган бўлиб, у олий таълим муассасалари педагог кадрларининг касб маҳорати ҳамда инновацион компетентлигини ривожлантириш, соҳага оид илғор хорижий тажрибалар, янги билим ва малакаларни ўзлаштириш, шунингдек амалиётга жорий этиш кўникмаларини такомиллаштиришни мақсад қилади.

Мазкур модул дастури олий таълимнинг илғор таълим технологиялари ва педагогик маҳорат, таълим жараёнларида интерфаол усулларни қўллаш, амалий хорижий тил, педагогнинг касбий компетентлигини ошириш бўйича билим, кўникма ва малакаларини шакллантиришни назарда тутди.

Дастур доирасида берилаётган мавзулар таълим соҳаси бўйича педагог кадрларни қайта тайёрлаш ва малакасини ошириш мазмуни, сифати ва уларнинг тайёргарлигига қўйиладиган умумий малака талаблари ва ўқув режалари асосида шакллантирилган бўлиб, бу орқали олий таълим муассасалари педагог кадрларининг соҳага оид замонавий таълим ва инновация технологиялари, илғор хорижий тажрибалардан самарали фойдаланиш, ахборот-коммуникация технологияларини ўқув жараёнига кенг татбиқ этиш, чет тилларини интенсив ўзлаштириш даражасини ошириш ҳисобига уларнинг касб маҳоратини, илмий фаолиятини мунтазам юксалтириш, олий таълим муассасаларида ўқув-тарбия жараёнларини ташкил этиш ва бошқаришни тизимли таҳлил қилиш, шунингдек, педагогик вазиятларда оптимал қарорлар қабул қилиш билан боғлиқ компетенцияларга эга бўлишлари таъминланади.

Модулнинг мақсади ва вазифалари

Фаннинг мақсади-амалий хорижий тилни ўрганишнинг интенсиф усуллари: тил кўникмаларини яъни сўзлашиш, тинглаб тушуниш, ўқиш ва ёзиш амалиётларини уйғунликда ривожлантириш орқали унинг чет тили малакасини умумевропа стандартининг С1 дан С2 даражасига етказиш.

Қайта тайёрлаш ва малака ошириш тингловчилари курс давомида турли соҳаларда далилларга асосланган матнларни ўқиб тўлиқ тушуниш, кундалик ва йўналиш соҳасига оид Интернет сайтларидан тегишли маълумотларни топиш ва тушуниш, рисоалар, рекламалар, газета эълонларидан мутахассисликка оид маълумотларни топиш, ОАВ матнларининг ўқиб асосий мазмунини тушуниш каби топшириқларни бажарадилар. Шунингдек, тингловчилар тинглаб тушуниш, гапириш, ўқиш кўникмаларига ёзиш тил кўникмасини интеграллаштирган ҳолда матннинг қисқа мазмунини ва иншолар ёзиш каби вазифаларни ҳам бажарадилар.

II. МОДУЛНИ ЎҚИТИШДА ФОЙДАЛАНИЛАДИГАН ИНТЕРФАОЛ ТАЪЛИМ МЕТОДЛАРИ

Ажурли арра методи

Ажур французча «ажоур» сўзидан олинган бўлиб, «бир ёқдан иккинчи ёққа ўтган, икки томони очик» деган маънони англатади.

Бу методдан фойдаланиш қуйидаги босқичларда амалга оширилади:

-талаба-ўқувчилардан 4-5 кишилик кичик гуруҳлар ташкил этилади

-талаба-ўқувчиларга бериладиган топшириқ ва уларни бажаришда фойдаланиладиган матнли материаллар бир нечта асосий қисмлар (масалан, режа асосида бир нечта мавзучалар)га қирқилади;

-мавзучалар ва уларга доир матнли материаллар пакети кичик гуруҳларнинг ҳар бир аъзосига тарқатилади;

-кичик гуруҳ аъзолари матнли материаллардан фойдаланиб топшириқни бажаришга киришадилар;

-кичик гуруҳларнинг яхши ўзлаштирувчи аъзоларидан эксперт гуруҳи ташкил этилади;

-эксперт гуруҳи аъзолари қўлларидаги топшириқларни ҳамкорликда муҳокама қилишиб, бошқаларга ўргатиш режасини эгаллашадилар;

-экспертлар ўзларининг дастлабки кичик гуруҳларига қайтишиб ўрганганларини бошқа шерикларига ўргатишади.

Ўқитишга бундай ёндашилганда талаба-ўқувчиларнинг ҳамкорликда ишлашларига ва катта ҳажмдаги ўқув материалларининг ўзлаштирилишига эришилади.

Бу методдан фойдаланувчи педагог талаба-ўқувчиларга тақдим этилган топшириқни бажаришга доир материалларни кунт билан ўрганишни, биргаликда муҳокама этишни, савол-жавоб қилишни, ўрганганларини бошқаларга ўргатишлари зарурлигини олдиндан айтади.

Синектика методи

Бу метод амалий, семинарлар ва лаборатория машғулоти учун қулай бўлиб, «ақлий ҳужум» методига яқин. Бунда талаба дарсда қўйилган муаммони ҳал қилиш юзасидан аналогияга асосланган ҳолда ўз фикрларини, қарашларини олға суради. Бунда аналогия бевосита, шахсий, рамзий ва хаёлий бўлиши мумкин.

Думалок стол методи

Бу метод амалий машғулоти учун қулай. Бунда ўқитувчи томонидан битта савол ёзилган варақ кичик гуруҳга тақдим этилади. Талабалар ўзларининг исми-шарифлари ва саволга жавобларини ёзиб, варақни ёнидаги талабага узатади. Шу тариқа ёзилган жавоблар йиғиштириб олиниб, талабалар иштирокида нотўғрилари ўчириб чиқилади ва натижалар баҳоланади.

Ручка стол устида методи

Бу метод амалий машғулоти учун қулай. Саволга ўзининг жавоб вариантини ёзган кичик гуруҳдаги талаба ручкасини стол устига қўйиб варақни ёнидаги шеригига узатади. Саволга жавоб ёза олмаган талаба ручкасини столга қўймайди. Бир нечта кичик гуруҳлардаги талабаларнинг қўйилган бир хил саволга жавоблари йиғиштириб олиниб биргаликда муҳокама қилинади. Бу методнинг афзалликлари: ўқитувчи машғулоти ким тайёр, ким тайёр эмаслигини кўриб туради; машғулоти тайёрланмаган талаба оғзаки муҳокама пайтида кўриб чиқиётган мавзу юзасидан анчагина фойдали билимлар олади; бу метод кичик гуруҳда олиб бориладиган иш бўлиб, талаба интизомини мустаҳкамлайди ва уларни жипслаштиради, чунки ўзининг жавоб варианты устида узок ўйлаб ўтирадиган талаба бутун гуруҳга ажратилган вақтни сарфлаб юборади. Шунингдек талаба машғулоти тайёр бўлмаса, бунда ҳам гуруҳга панд беради; талабалар ўз жавобларини икки марта, яъни ёзма иш пайтида ва оғзаки муҳокама вақтида таҳлил қилиб чиқишади.

Ротация методи

Бу метод машғулот мавзуини ҳар бир кичик гуруҳ алоҳида-алоҳида муҳокама қилиб чиқиши, ёзганларини бутун гуруҳ жамоа бўлиб таҳлил қилиб кўриши учун қўлланилади ва қуйидаги босқичларда амалга оширилади:

-дарс мавзуси бўйича номерланган топшириқлар (масалан, режадаги мавзучалар) плакатларга ёзилиб доскага осиб қўйилади;

-топшириқлар сони учта бўлса, талаба-ўқувчилар ҳам шунча кичик гуруҳларга ажратилади ва гуруҳчалар номерланади;

-кичик гуруҳлар ўзларининг номерларига мос номердаги топшириқни ва уни бажаришда фойдаланиладиган ёзма маълумотлар пакетини олади;

-кичик гуруҳлар ўзларига тақдим этилган материалларни ҳамкорликда ўрганишиб топшириққа жавобларини ёзишади;

-жавоблар кичик гуруҳдаги ҳуснихати чиройли бир талаба-ўқувчи томонидан ёзилади;

-топшириқларга ёзилган жавоблар варағи, маълумотлар пакети кичик гуруҳлараро алмаштирилади ва қўшимчалар қилинади, бироқ жавобларнинг такрорланишига йўл қўйилмайди;

-жавоблар қайси кичик гуруҳники эканлиги ажралиб туриши учун уларга ҳар хил рангдаги фламастерлардан фойдаланиш тавсия этилади. Шунингдек кичик гуруҳлар номерланиб, улар ўзларининг жавобларини шу номер остида ёзишлари ҳам мумкин;

-жавоблар ёзилган варақлар доскадаги осифлиқ плакатларга скочда ёпиштирилиб, ўқитувчи иштирокида муҳокама қилинади, умумлаштирилади ва тўғри жавоблар дафтарларга ёзиб олинади;

-тўғри ва мукамал жавоблар сонига қараб талаба-ўқувчилар рағбатлантирилади ва баҳоланади.

Галереяни айланиш методи

Кичик гуруҳларнинг барча аъзоларига битта муаммо таклиф этилади. Ҳар бир кичик гуруҳ ўзларига берилган муаммога белгиланган вақт ичида фикрларини ёзиб, жавоблари ёзилган варақларини бошқа гуруҳ билан алмаштиради. Жавобларни олган гуруҳ уларни баҳолайди ва тугал бўлмаса ўз вариантлари билан тўлдиради. Сўнгра гуруҳлар фикрлари умумлаштирилиб, энг юқори баллга арзийдиган тўғри ва мукамал жавоблар танлаб олинади.

Қор бўрон методи

Иккига ажратилган гуруҳ талабалари бир муаммо юзасидан энг кўп тўғри жавоблар топиш мақсадида биргаликда муҳокама юритишади. Ҳар бир тўғри жавоб юмалоқланган қор кўринишида ўша гуруҳ ҳисобига ёзиб қўйилади; тўпланган умумий баллар миқдори асосида гуруҳлар баҳоланади.

Асалари галаси методи

Муаммо битта гуруҳда ёки икки кичик гуруҳларда муҳокама қилинади. Бунда топшириқлар ҳар хил ёки бутун гуруҳга битта бўлиши мумкин. Гуруҳлар қўйилган муаммони маълум муддат муҳокама этиб, натижани бошқаларга маълум қилишади. Муаммо ечимининг энг яхши варианты танлаб олинади.

Думаловчи қор уюми методи

Думаловчи қор уюми методи ўқув машғулоти ўтказиш методининг рамзий номи бўлиб, иш қўйилган муаммо устида мулоҳаза юритиб кўриш учун талабаларга вақт, тегишли манбалар, тарқатма материаллар беришдан бошланади. Бу метод гуруҳнинг ҳар бир аъзосига бутун гуруҳнинг билимлари ва тажрибаларидан фойдаланиб, ўзининг кенг қамровли нуқтаи назарини баён этишни назарда тутаяди. Бунинг учун талабалар 4 та кичик гуруҳларга ажратилади. Муҳокама қилиб чиқиш учун барча гуруҳларга битта топшириқ берилади. Ҳар бир кичик гуруҳ топшириқ устида алоҳида ишлайди. Сўнгра биринчи билан иккинчи ва учинчи билан тўртинчи гуруҳлар муаммо устида биргаликда муҳокама юритишади. Охир оқибатда барча кичик гуруҳлар бирлашиб, бутун яхлит гуруҳ бўлиб қўйилган муаммо ечимини ҳал этишнинг турли йўлларини, вариантларини муҳокама қилишади. Бундай муҳокама жараёнида талабаларнинг қўйилган муаммо юзасидан билимлари чуқурлашиб, оидинлашиб, бойиб, кенгқамровли бўлиб боради.

Синдикат методи

Гуруҳ учта кичик гуруҳларга бўлинади. Бунда таклиф этилаётган топширик уч хил нуқтаи назардан ҳал этилиш зарур. Масалан, уч ноъмалумли учта тенгламалар системасини ечиш топшириғи берилган бўлсин, у ҳолда биринчи гуруҳ масалани Гаусс, иккинчи гуруҳ Крамер, учинчи гуруҳ матрица усулидан фойдаланиб ечади. Сўнгра ечимлар биргаликда муҳокама этилиб, умумлаштирилади.

Аквариум методи

Гуруҳдан уч талаба ажратиб олиниб уларга хона ўртасидаги стол атрофига ўтиришлари ва қўйилган муаммони ўн минут атрофида биргаликда муҳокама, қилишиб фикр билдиришлари сўралади. Бу уч талаба аквариумдаги балиқларга қиёс. Атрофда ўтирган кузатувчилар ўртадаги талабаларнинг фикрларини диққат билан тинглаб, жавобларни тўғри ва нотўғрига ажратиб ёзиб боришади ҳамда муҳокама пайтида ўзларининг қарашларини баён этишади. Етарли даражада фикр билдира олмаган ўртадаги талабалар ўз ўринларини кучли фикр билдирган кузатувчи талабаларга бўшатиб беришади. Ҳар бир муаммо юзасидан билдирилган фикрлар талабалар иштирокида ўқитувчи томонидан умумлаштирилади.

Рақамли методлар

Гуруҳдаги талабаларнинг умумий сонидан келиб чиққан ҳолда 4x4x4, 5x5x5 ёки 6x6x6 методларининг биридан фойдаланилади. Масалан, 5x5x5 методида ҳар бири 5 талабадан иборат 5 та кичик гуруҳчалар ташкил этилиб, уларнинг 5 нафар сардорлари тўпланишиб қўйилган муаммони ҳамкорликда муҳокама этишади, сўнгра ўзларининг гуруҳларига қайтишиб шерикларига масаланинг ечимини ўргатишади.

How to Make a Business Introduction

Establish a connection with the listeners: "Good morning, ladies and gentlemen/Hello, Mr. Jameson, I am..." It is always a good idea to mention the name of the person you are introducing yourself to. This will immediately attract their attention.

Key points: You should include several different points in your introduction, such as your experience, your company's name, your position in the company, etc. The things you say about yourself will vary depending on your audience.

Be confident and friendly: Talk about yourself in a confident manner, but make sure not to come across as arrogant. That's why it's important to be natural and friendly, at the same time.

Be attentive: Pay attention to the verbal and non-verbal cues that your listener gives you and make sure to give them a chance to talk as well and ask questions if they have any. Always give the other person time to introduce himself/herself.

Discussion

1. How do you feel when you have to introduce yourself in conferences, meetings, etc?
2. How important do you think it is to make a good self-introduction?
3. Are there any specific rules that should be followed when making an introduction in your country?
4. What are some other tips that you would give to someone for making a good introduction?

Useful Expressions

- Let me introduce myself.
- The reason why I chose this work is...
- My main strengths are...
- I believe my strongest trait is...
- I am convinced that...
- What concerns my weaknesses sometimes I spend a bit too much time checking my own work.

Video Script 1: Introducing Yourself

<https://www.coursera.org/lecture/business-english-intro/video-introducing-yourself-bH0qh>

Welcome back.

We're glad that you decided to take our course.

In this lesson, we're going to show you typical language for interacting when you first meet someone in business. This includes introducing yourself by giving your name, job, company, and city. You'll also identify the job, company, and city of your new acquaintances. Let's begin with two videos.

Watch and listen.

A: Hi I'm Mary Russell.

B: Nice to meet you. Philson Park.

A: Philson?

B: Yeah that's right.

A: So, you're from New Orleans, I see.

B: Yes originally, but now, I'm based in New York. I work for SQL Electronics. How about yourself?

A: I'm from Canada. I'm with RDX Systems in Toronto.

B: I know RDX. Do you work with Maria Yestes?

A: I do. Small world. How do you know Maria?

A: Hi, Ted.

B: Hey, Sue.

A: How's it going?

B: Good!

A: Sue, this is Michelle Cole. She's visiting Seattle from New York.

B: Nice to meet you. I'm Sue Martin. I work with Ted here at UMed.

C: Nice to meet you, too.

B: So, Michelle, did you just start working here?

C: No I'm just here on business. I work for MAZ in New York.

B: Interesting.

Now, let's look at some useful language for introducing yourself. The language of introductions is fairly easy. The difficulty is getting the key information; we often repeat someone's name to make sure we get it right. If you have a name that may be difficult for other people, say your name slowly and clearly.

You may even need to spell your name.

A: I'm Filson Parr.

B: Filson?

A: That's right.

A: I'm Filson Parr.

B: Wilson?

A: No, Filson.

B: Oh, Filson.

A: I'm Filson Parr.

B: Sorry?

A: Filson Parr.

B: Filson?

A: Yes, that's right.

Here is a Predict Activity. What do you predict the speaker will say? Look at this conversation. Some parts are missing.

What are the missing words? You have three seconds to say the words to yourself. Then you'll hear possibilities.

A: Hello. My name is Jason McNeil.

B: Nice to meet you My name's Karen Su.

A: Are you from Seattle?

B: No, I'm from Vancouver, Canada.

In the United States, most people, both men and women, shake hands in a business setting.

The normal way to shake hands is to extend your hand with your thumb up, hold the other person's hand firmly, but not too tight, and shake two times. In some countries, people nod their heads or bow but don't shake hands. And in other countries, women don't shake hands with men.

What's the custom in your country?

Share in the discussion forum.

Video Script 2: Real Language

Notice the words we add in conversations to introduce a question.

'So' with falling intonation is a way to make a question seem less direct.

A: So, are you from Seattle?

A: So, do you work here?

A: So, you're from London?

We also use so to change the topic or move on to the next thing.

A: So, what should we do next?

A: So, should we get back to work?

When we need to explain something a bit, or introduce something unexpected we might say 'Well'.

A: Do you work here?

B: Yes. Well, I just started.

A: Are you from Seattle?

B: Well, I've lived here for about five years. I'm actually from Chicago.

We also use well to show that we're thinking something over, or to express hesitation, and we use it to begin to end a conversation.

A: Well, thanks for your input.

A: Well, it was nice to meet you.

When you answer a question you can throw the question back to the speaker with how about you?

A: I work for SQL Electronics. How about you?

B: Oh, I'm with RDX Systems in Toronto.

Write 'so', 'well', or 'how about you' in the conversations.

Here is a predict activity. What do you predict the speaker will say? Look at this conversation. Some parts are missing. What are the missing words?

You have three seconds to say the words to yourself, then you will hear possibilities.

A: So, where are you from?

B: I'm from Mexico City. How about you?

A: Are you from this area? B: Well, no. I'm actually from Mexico.
A: So, what company do you work for? B: Starbucks, how about you?
A: I teach at the University. So, have you been here very long? B: Oh, about ten years.
A: Well, there's my friend. I should go. B: Well, it was nice to meet you. A: Yes, you too.

Task 4 - Introducing yourself

Handout

1. Make up three questions you want to ask from your partners
2. Interview your partners and note down their responses
3. Answer your partners' questions.

Lesson2 – Talking about the Street Art

Task 1

- Ask participants to read the text and complete the exercises to it.

- When they finish, get them into small groups of three-four to compare their answers.
- Check the answers with the whole group

Participants' Handout

Read the text and complete the exercises after it.

Street art

- A Street art is nothing new. Throughout history, people have decorated the walls that surround them with words and images. But it's only recently that the art world has begun to take it seriously, with major exhibitions at leading galleries such as MASP in São Paulo, Brazil and MOCA in Los Angeles, United States. Specialised street art galleries have also begun to open up, including Lab Art in Los Angeles and the Boiler House in Cardiff, Wales. One of the bestknown street artists, Banksy, has recently received awards for his film Exit Through the Gift Shop, although his face doesn't appear on screen as he prefers to remain unseen. What is no secret is the soaring value of street art – buildings which feature Banksy's images have been known to double in value!
- B Not everyone is a fan, however. Police in Los Angeles are reported to have complained that the Art in the Streets exhibition at MOCA led to an increase in graffiti in the neighbourhood. Much graffiti is far from artistic, consisting mainly of 'tags', which are usually hurried and untidy symbols or letters that do no more than identify the person who made them. What concerns critics is not just the ugliness of much graffiti, but the enormous sums required to clean up the mess. Cleaning graffiti off London buses, for instance, costs an estimated £10m every year. And then there is the very real risk of injury or electrocution to the taggers themselves as they trespass on dangerous areas, such as high buildings and railways lines, in search of new places to make their mark.
- C Stiff penalties, including prison sentences, have been introduced in order to deter taggers and there has been heavy investment in surveillance in order to catch offenders red-handed. There are, for example, 60,000 CCTV cameras on London buses alone. What this approach fails to do, however, is to distinguish between street art and graffiti. In London, even works by famous artists, such as Banksy, have been removed on the grounds that if they were left in place, this would be seen as condoning graffiti. Some cities have opted instead for a more educational approach. In the US city of Washington, DC, the Murals DC project trains local children in more creative street art in the hope that they will learn to care more both for art and for their environment.

Task 2

- Tell participants that you are going to focus on grammar structure – CLEFT SENTENCES.
- Explain the rules and ask participants to find two more sentences in the text with the cleft structure. Ask the to reconstruct these sentences avoiding cleft structure.

Grammar focus – Cleft Sentences

Cleft means divided. In a cleft sentence, information which could be given in one clause is divided into two parts, each with its own verb. This way you give extra emphasis to part of the sentence

What is no secret is the soaring value of street art (paragraph 1) is an example of a ‘cleft sentence’, in which something that usually comes later in a sentence is moved closer to the beginning in order to give extra emphasis. So, in an ordinary sentence, is no secret would be in the second half: The soaring value of street art is no secret.

In these sentences WHAT means THE THING(S) THAT. The WH-clause must contain a verb. To highlight the action we use a form of DO in the WH-clause. The highlighted phrase usually contains a bare infinitive or TO + INF. If the highlighted verb is in the continuous or perfect, the form of DO matches it. The boys are taking Sandy to the match
 ™ What the boys are doing is taking Sandy to the match.

- ✓ Find two other examples of cleft sentences, and write the ordinary sentences they have been made from.

1.

Answer Key

1 What concerns critics is not just the ugliness of much graffiti, but the enormous sums required to clean up the mess. (Ordinary sentence: Critics are concerned not just about the ugliness ...)

2 What this approach fails to do, however is to distinguish between street art and graffiti. (Ordinary sentence: This approach, however, fails to distinguish ...)

➤ Ask participants to complete the following sentences with their own ideas.

✓ Complete these cleft sentences with your own ideas.

1 What interested me most in this article was _____ .

2 What I'd really like to know about Banksy is _____ .

3 What I find hard to understand about the street art exhibitions is _____ .

4 What bus and train companies should do about graffiti is _____ .

5 ... clean up the mess they've made.

6 ... impresses me about great street artists is the way they make their art public without earning any money for it.

➤ Tell participants that there are other forms of cleft sentences. Write them on the board and invite volunteers to give their own examples for each structure

A MOTHER IN MANNVILLE

Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

The orphanage is high in the Carolina Mountains. I went there in the autumn for isolation to do some troublesome writing. I wanted mountain air to blow out the malaria from too long a time in the subtropics, and I was homesick for the flaming of maples in October, for corn shocks and pumpkins and black-walnut trees. I found them all around a cabin that belonged to the orphanage, half a mile beyond the orphanage farm. When I took the cabin, I asked for somebody to chop wood for the fireplace.

Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

Late one afternoon I looked up from my typewriter, a little startled. A boy stood at the door. My pointer dog, my companion, was at his side and had not barked to warn me. The boy was probably 12 years old, but undersized. He wore overalls and a torn shirt, and was barefoot. He said, “I can chop some wood today.”

“You? But you’re small.”

“Size don’t matter, chopping wood,” he said. “Some of the big boys don’t chop good. I’ve been chopping wood at the orphanage a long time.”

“Very well. There’s the ax. See what you can do.” I went back to work, and he began to chop. The blows were rhythmic and steady, and shortly I had forgotten him, the sound no more of an interruption than a constant rain. I suppose an hour and a half passed before I heard the boy’s steps on the cabin stoop. “I have to go to supper now,” he said. “I can come again tomorrow.”

I said, “I’ll pay you now for what you’ve done,” thinking I should probably have to insist on an older boy. We went together back of the cabin. An astonishing amount of solid wood had been cut. “But you’ve done as much as a man,” I said. “This is a splendid pile.”

I looked at him, actually, for the first time. His hair was the color of the corn shocks; and his eyes, very direct, were like the mountain sky when rain is pending – gray, with a shadowing of that miraculous blue. I gave him a quarter. “You may come tomorrow afternoon,” I said, “and thank you very much.”

He looked at me and at the coin, and seemed to want to speak, but could not, and turned away.

At daylight I was half wakened by the sound of chopping. Again it was so even in texture that I went back to sleep. When I left my bed, the boy had gone, and a stack of kindling was neat against the cabin wall. He came again after school and worked until time to return to the orphanage.

His name was Jerry; he had been at the orphanage since he was four. I could picture him at four, with the same grave gray-blue eyes and the same – independence? No, the word that comes to me is “integrity.” It is bedded on courage, but it is more than brave. It is honest, but it is more than honesty.

The ax handle broke one day. Jerry said the orphanage woodshop would repair it. I brought money to pay for the job and he refused it. "I'll pay for it," he said. "I broke it. I brought the ax down careless."

"But no one hits accurately every time," I told him. "The fault was in the handle."

It was only then that he would take the money. He was standing back of his own carelessness. He was a freewill agent and he chose to do careful work; and if he failed, he took the responsibility without subterfuge.

And he did for me the unnecessary thing, the gracious thing, that we find done only by the great of heart. Things no training can teach, for they are done on the instant, with no predicated experience. He found a cubbyhole beside the fireplace that I had not noticed. There, of his own accord, he put wood, so that I might always have dry fire material ready in case of sudden wet weather. A stone was loose in the rough walk to the cabin. He dug a deeper hole and steadied it, although he came, himself, by a shortcut over the bank.

I found that when I tried to return his thoughtfulness with such things as candy and apples, he was wordless. "Thank you" was, perhaps, an expression for which he had had no use, for his courtesy was instinctive. He only looked at the gift and at me, and a curtain lifted, so that I saw deeper into the clear well of his eyes; and gratitude was there, and affection, soft over the firm granite of character.

He became intimate, of course, with my pointer, Pat. There is a strange communion between a boy and a dog. Perhaps they possess the same singleness of spirit, the same kind of wisdom. It is difficult to explain, but it exists.

When I went across the state for a weekend, I left the dog in Jerry's charge. Fog filled the mountain passes so treacherously that it was Monday noon before I returned to the cabin. The dog had been fed and cared for that morning. Jerry came early in the afternoon, anxious. "The superintendent said nobody would drive in the fog," he said. "I came last night and you hadn't come. So I brought Pat some of my breakfast this morning. I wouldn't have let anything happen to him."

I gave him a dollar in payment, and he looked at it and went away. But that night he came in the darkness and knocked at the door. "Come in, Jerry," I said, "if you're allowed to be away this late."

"I told them – maybe a story – that I thought you would want to see me," he said.

"That's true," I assured him, and saw his relief. "I want to hear about how you managed with the dog."

He sat by the fire with me, and told me of their two days together. The dog lay close to him, and found a comfort there that I did not have for him. "He stayed right with me," he told me, "except when he ran in the laurel. There was a place where the grass was high and I lay down in it and hid. I could hear Pat hunting for me. When he found me he acted crazy, and he ran around and around me, in circles."

We watched the flames.

“That’s an apple log,” he said. “It burns the prettiest of any wood.”

We were very close and he was suddenly impelled to speak.

“You look a little bit like my mother,” he said. “Especially in the dark, by the fire.”

“But you were only four, Jerry, when you came here. You have remembered how she looked, all these years?”

“My mother lives in Mannville,” he said.

I did not know why finding that he had a mother so greatly disturbed me. Then I understood my distress. I was filled with a passionate resentment that any woman should go away and leave her son – especially a son like this one. The orphanage was a wholesome place; the food was more than adequate. Granted, perhaps, that the boys felt no lack, what blood fed the bowels of a woman who did not yearn over this child’s lean body that had come in parturition out of her own?

“Have you seen her, Jerry – lately?” I asked.

“I see her every summer. She sends for me.”

I wanted to cry out. “Why are you not with her? How can she let you go away again?”

He said, “She comes up here from Mannville whenever she can. She doesn’t have a job now.”

His face shone in the firelight. “She wanted to give me a puppy, but they can’t let any one boy keep a puppy. You remember the suit I had on last Sunday?” He was plainly proud. “She sent me that for Christmas. The Christmas before that” – he drew a long breath, savoring the memory – “she sent me a pair of roller skates. I let the other boys use them, but they’re careful of them.”

She had not, then, entirely deserted or forgotten him. But what circumstance other than poverty...?

“I’m going to take the dollar you gave me for taking care of Pat,” he said, “and buy her a pair of gloves.”

I hated her. Poverty or no, there was other food than bread, and the soul could starve as quickly as the body. He was taking his dollar to buy gloves for her and she lived away from him, in Mannville, and contented herself with sending him skates.

“She likes white gloves,” he said. “Do you think I can get them for a dollar?”

“I think so,” I said.

We did not speak of Jerry’s mother again. His having a mother, any sort, relieved me of the ache I had had about him. He was not lonely. It was none of my concern.

He came every day and cut my wood and did small helpful favors. The days had become cold, and often I asked him inside. He would lie on the floor in front of the fire, with one arm across the pointer, and they would both doze and wait quietly for me to finish work. Other days they ran with a common ecstasy through the laurel, and he brought me back vermilion maple leaves, and chestnut boughs dripping with imperial yellow.

I was ready to go. I said to him, “You have been my good friend, Jerry. I shall miss you. Pat will miss you, too. I am leaving tomorrow.” He did not answer, and I watched him go in silence.

I expected him the next day, but he did not come. Late in the day I stopped by the orphanage and left the cabin key with Miss Clark.

“And will you call Jerry for me to say good-bye to him?”

“I don’t know where he is,” she said. “I’m afraid he’s not well. He didn’t eat his dinner this noon. One of the other boys saw him going up the hill into the laurel.”

I was almost relieved; it would be easier not to say good-bye.

I said, “I wanted to talk with you about his mother – why he’s here – but I’m in more of a hurry than I expected to be. Here’s some money. I’d like you to buy things for him at Christmas and on his birthday. It will be better than for me to try to send him things. I could so easily duplicate – skates, for instance.”

She blinked her honest spinster’s eyes. “There’s not much use for skates here,” she said. Her stupidity annoyed me.

“What I mean,” I said, “is that I don’t want to duplicate the things his mother sends him. I might have chosen skates if I didn’t know she had already given them to him.”

She stared at me.

“I don’t understand,” she said. “He has no mother. He has no skates.”

Task 4 - WHAT IS YOUR UNDERSTANDING?

1. Why does the storyteller go to the mountains? She went there to do troublesome writing and relax after being recovered from malaria in subtropics. Also, she felt homesick.

Lesson 5

Topic: Law and Crime - Story: Button, Button

Time: 80 min

Warm-up

Ask participants:

- Have you got presents
- Did you know who presented it to them and what was inside?

Task 1

Say participants to read the story and complete the tasks after it. DISCUSS the questions together.

BUTTON, BUTTON

The package was lying by the front door – a cube-shaped carton sealed with tape, their name and address printed by hand: “Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lewis, 217 E. Thirty-seventh Street, New York, New York 10016.” Norma picked it up, unlocked the door, and went into the apartment. It was just getting dark.

After she put the lamb chops in the broiler, she sat down to open the package. Inside the carton was a push-button unit fastened to a small wooden box. A glass dome covered the button. Norma tried to lift it off, but it was locked in place. She turned the unit over and saw a folded piece of paper Scotch-taped to the bottom of the box. She pulled it off: “Mr. Steward will call on you at 8:00 p.m.”

Norma put the button unit beside her on the couch. She reread the typed note, smiling.

A few moments later, she went back into the kitchen to make the salad.

The doorbell rang at eight o'clock. “I'll get it,” Norma called from the kitchen. Arthur was in the living room, reading.

There was a small man in the hallway. He removed his hat as Norma opened the door. “Mrs. Lewis?” he inquired politely.

“Yes?”

“I’m Mr. Steward.”

“Oh, yes.” Norma repressed a smile. She was sure now it was a sales pitch.

“May I come in?” asked Mr. Steward.

“I’m rather busy,” Norma said. “I’ll get you your whatchamacallit, though.” She started to turn.

“Don’t you want to know what it is?”

Norma turned back. Mr. Steward’s tone had been offensive. “No, I don’t think so,” she replied.

“It could prove very valuable,” he told her.

“Monetarily?” she challenged.

Mr. Steward nodded. “Monetarily,” he said.

Norma frowned. She didn’t like his attitude. “What are you trying to sell?” she asked.

“I’m not selling anything,” he answered.

Arthur came out of the living room. “Something wrong?”

Mr. Steward introduced himself.

“Oh, the –” Arthur pointed toward the living room and smiled.

“What is that gadget, anyway?”

“It won’t take long to explain,” replied Mr. Steward. “May I come in?”

“If you’re selling something –,” Arthur said.

Mr. Steward shook his head. “I’m not.” Arthur looked at Norma. “Up to you,” she said. He hesitated. “Well, why not?” he said.

They went into the living room and Mr. Steward sat in Norma’s chair. He reached into an inside coat pocket and withdrew a small sealed envelope. “Inside here is a key to the bell-unit dome,” he said. He set the envelope on the chairside table.

“The bell is connected to our office.” “What’s it for?” asked Arthur.

“If you push the button,” Mr. Steward told him, “somewhere in the world someone you don’t know will die. In return for which you will receive a payment of $50,000.”

Norma stared at the small man. He was smiling. “What are you talking about?”

Arthur asked him. Mr. Steward looked surprised. “But I’ve just explained,” he said. “Is this a practical joke?” asked Arthur. “Not at all. The offer is completely genuine.”

“You aren’t making sense,” Arthur said. “You expect us to believe –”

“Who do you represent?” demanded Norma.

Mr. Steward looked embarrassed. “I’m afraid I’m not at liberty to tell you that,” he said. “However, I assure you, the organization is of international scope.”

“I think you’d better leave,” Arthur said, standing. Mr. Steward rose. “Of course.” “And take your button unit with you.”

“Are you sure you wouldn’t care to think about it for a day or so?” Arthur picked up the button unit and the envelope and thrust them into Mr. Steward’s hands. He walked into the hall and pulled open the door. “I’ll leave my card,” said Mr. Steward. He placed it on the table by the door.

When he was gone, Arthur tore it in half and tossed the pieces onto the table.

Norma was still sitting on the sofa. “What do you think it was?” she asked.

“I don’t care to know,” he answered.

She tried to smile but couldn’t. “Aren’t you curious at all?”

“No.” He shook his head.

After Arthur returned to his book, Norma went back to the kitchen and finished washing the dishes.

“Why won’t you talk about it?” Norma asked.

Arthur’s eyes shifted as he brushed his teeth. He looked at her reflection in the bathroom mirror.

“Doesn’t it intrigue you?”

“It offends me,” Arthur said.

“I know, but” – Norma rolled another curler in her hair – “doesn’t it intrigue you, too?”

“You think it’s a practical joke?” she asked as they went into the bedroom.

“If it is, it’s a sick one.”

Norma sat on her bed and took off her slippers. “Maybe it’s some kind of psychological research.”

Arthur shrugged. “Could be.”

“Maybe some eccentric millionaire is doing it.”

“Maybe.”

“Wouldn’t you like to know?”

Arthur shook his head.

“Why?”

“Because it’s immoral,” he told her.

Norma slid beneath the covers. “Well, I think it’s intriguing,” she said.

Arthur turned off the lamp and leaned over to kiss her. “Goodnight,” he said.

“Good night.” She patted his back.

Norma closed her eyes. Fifty thousand dollars, she thought.

In the morning, as she left the apartment, Norma saw the card halves on the table. Impulsively, she dropped them into her purse. She locked the front door and joined Arthur in the elevator.

While she was on her coffee break, she took the card halves from her purse and held the torn edges together. Only Mr. Steward’s name and telephone number were printed on the card.

After lunch, she took the card halves from her purse again and Scotch-taped the edges together. “Why am I doing this?” she thought.

Just before five, she dialed the number.

“Good afternoon,” said Mr. Steward’s voice.

Norma almost hung up but restrained herself. She cleared her throat. “This is Mrs. Lewis,” she said.

“Yes, Mrs. Lewis.” Mr. Steward sounded pleased.

“I’m curious.”

“That’s natural,” Mr. Steward said.

“Not that I believe a word of what you told us.”

“Oh, it’s quite authentic,” Mr. Steward answered.

“Well, whatever –” Norma swallowed. “When you said someone in the world would die, what did you mean?”

“Exactly that,” he answered. “It could be anyone. All we guarantee is that you don’t know them. And, of course, that you wouldn’t have to watch them die.”

“For $50,000,” Norma said.

“That is correct.”

She made a scoffing sound. “That’s crazy.”

“Nonetheless, that is the proposition,” Mr. Steward said. “Would you like me to return the button unit?”

Norma stiffened. “Certainly not.” She hung up angrily.

The package was lying by the front door; Norma saw it as she left the elevator. Well, of all the nerve, she thought. She glared at the carton as she unlocked the door. I just won’t take it in, she thought. She went inside and started dinner.

Later, she went into the front hall. Opening the door, she picked up the package and carried it into the kitchen, leaving it on the table.

She sat in the living room, looking out the window. After a while, she went back into the kitchen to turn the cutlets in the broiler. She put the package in a bottom cabinet. She’d throw it out in the morning.

“Maybe some eccentric millionaire is playing games with people,” she said.

Arthur looked up from his dinner. “I don’t understand you.”

“What does that mean?”

“Let it go,” he told her.

Norma ate in silence. Suddenly, she put her fork down. “Suppose it’s a genuine offer?” she said.

Arthur stared at her.

“Suppose it’s a genuine offer?”

“All right, suppose it is?” He looked incredulous. “What would you like to do? Get the button back and push it? Murder someone?”

Norma looked disgusted. “Murder.”

“How would you define it?”

“If you don’t even know the person?” Norma said.

Arthur looked astounded. “Are you saying what I think you are?”

“If it’s some old Chinese peasant ten thousand miles away? Some diseased native in the Congo?”

“How about some baby boy in Pennsylvania?” Arthur countered. “Some beautiful little girl on the next block?”

“Now you’re loading things.”

“The point is, Norma,” he continued, “what’s the difference who you kill? It’s still murder.”

“The point is,” Norma broke in, “if it’s someone you’ve never seen in your life and never will see, someone whose death you don’t even have to know about, you still wouldn’t push the button?”

Arthur stared at her, appalled. “You mean you would?”

“Fifty thousand dollars, Arthur.”

“What has the amount –”

“Fifty thousand dollars, Arthur,” Norma interrupted. “A chance to take that trip to Europe we’ve always talked about.”

“Norma, no.”

“A chance to buy that cottage on the Island.”

“Norma, no.” His face was white.

She shuddered. “All right, take it easy,” she said. “Why are you getting so upset? It’s only talk.”

After dinner, Arthur went into the living room. Before he left the table, he said, “I’d rather not discuss it anymore, if you don’t mind.”

Norma shrugged. “Fine with me.”

She got up earlier than usual to make pancakes, eggs, and bacon for Arthur’s breakfast.

“What’s the occasion?” he asked with a smile.

“No occasion.” Norma looked offended. “I wanted to do it, that’s all.”

“Good,” he said. “I’m glad you did.”

She refilled his cup. “Wanted to show you I’m not –” She shrugged.

“Not what?”

“Selfish.”

“Did I say you were?”

“Well” – she gestured vaguely – “last night...”

Arthur didn’t speak.

“All that talk about the button,” Norma said. “I think you – well, misunderstood me.”

“In what way?” His voice was guarded.

“I think you felt” – she gestured again – “that I was only thinking of myself.”

“Oh.”

“I wasn’t.”

“Norma –”

“Well, I wasn’t. When I talked about Europe, a cottage on the Island –”

“Norma, why are we getting so involved in this?”

“I’m not involved at all.” She drew in a shaking breath. “I’m simply trying to indicate that –” “What?”

“That I’d like for us to go to Europe. Like for us to have a cottage on the Island. Like for us to have a nicer apartment, nicer furniture, nicer clothes, a car. Like for us to finally have a baby, for that matter.”

“Norma, we will,” he said.

“When?”

He stared at her in dismay. “Norma –”

“When?!?”

“Are you” – he seemed to draw back slightly – “are you really saying –”

“I’m saying that they’re probably doing it for some research project!” she cut him off. “That they want to know what average people would do under such a circumstance! That they’re just saying someone would die, in order to study reactions, see if there’d be guilt, anxiety, whatever! You don’t really think they’d kill somebody, do you?!”

Arthur didn’t answer. She saw his hands trembling. After a while, he got up and left.

When he’d gone to work, Norma remained at the table, staring into her coffee. I’m going to be late, she thought. She shrugged. What difference did it make?

While she was stacking dishes, she turned abruptly, dried her hands, and took the package from the bottom cabinet. Opening it, she set the button unit on the table. She stared at it for a long time before taking the key from its envelope and removing the glass dome. She stared at the button. How ridiculous, she thought. All this furor over a meaningless button.

Reaching out, she pressed it down. For us, she thought angrily.

She shuddered. Was it happening? A chill of horror swept across her.

In a moment, it had passed. She made a contemptuous noise. Ridiculous, she thought. To get so worked up over nothing.

She threw the button unit, dome, and key into the wastebasket and hurried to dress for work.

She had just turned over the supper steaks when the telephone rang. She picked up the receiver. “Hello?”

“Mrs. Lewis?”

“Yes?”

“This is the Lenox Hill Hospital.”

She felt unreal as the voice informed her of the subway accident – the shoving crowd, Arthur pushed from the platform in front of the train. She was conscious of shaking her head but couldn’t stop.

As she hung up, she remembered Arthur’s life-insurance policy for $25,000, with double indemnity for – “No.” She couldn’t seem to breathe. She struggled to her feet and walked into the kitchen numbly. Something cold pressed at her skull as she removed the button unit from the wastebasket. There were no nails or screws visible. She couldn’t see how it was put together.

Abruptly, she began to smash it on the sink edge, pounding it harder and harder, until the wood split. She pulled the sides apart, cutting her fingers without noticing. There were no transistors in the box, no wires or tubes.

The box was empty.

She whirled with a gasp as the telephone rang. Stumbling into the living room, she picked up the receiver.

“Mrs. Lewis?” Mr. Steward asked.

It wasn’t her voice shrieking so; it couldn’t be. “You said I wouldn’t know the one that died!”

“My dear lady,” Mr. Steward said. “Do you really think you knew your husband?”

Read the article about food and check your answers to matching task

Food plays a pivotal role in human life. Maintaining good and proper health depends, among other things, on the food we consume each day. Consequently, it is imperative that we consider the nutritional value of the food we regularly eat. Fast food consumption has skyrocketed in the past few decades in comparison to home cooked meals. This has led to an increased prevalence of numerous health problems - predominantly those associated with being overweight.

The food we eat is often influenced by culture as well. While the jury is still out, many people consider the Mediterranean diet to be the healthiest there is. In addition to improving cardiac health, the Mediterranean diet is associated with a reduced incidence of cancer and Alzheimer's disease. This diet involves:

- Eating poultry and fish at least a couple of times each week.
- The use of herbs and spices as a substitute for salt (to add flavor to food).
- Eating an abundance of whole grains, fruit, and vegetables.
- Limiting red meat consumption (to no more than several times a month).

- Replacing butter with olive and canola oils.

The problem of healthy nutrition is a crucial issue nowadays and it requires a high level of awareness of humans' basic needs. Therefore, we must give credence to the old adage: "You are what you eat!"

Answer the following questions on the text

1. Has fast food consumption increased or decreased in the past few decades?
2. What diet do many people consider to be the healthiest?
3. What old adage does the article encourage us to give credence?

DISILLUSIONED BANKERS QUIT THE CITY FOR THE REWARDS OF TEACHING SCIENCE

Hundreds of university graduates are moving from finance to education
Robin McKie, science editor

1. The thrill of City life appears to be fading for hundreds of investment bankers who are preparing to turn their back on the financial sector and opt for a career in science teaching.
2. The Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) has revealed that inquiries about science teaching posts rose by a third last September compared with the same month in 2007. The agency has revealed that formal applications for science teaching posts have reached record levels and that further significant rises are expected next year due to the world financial crisis. Many of those applicants are coming from the City, it says.
3. Among those swapping the trading floor for the school laboratory is Elizabeth Baldwin. The 44-year-old worked for almost 20 years for major banks, including Merrill Lynch and Lehman Brothers, until she found, a few months ago, that the excitement of the job was disappearing.
4. "I had just had my second child, Thomas, and the thought of going back to the City became less and less palatable," she said. "The high pay no longer compensated for the long hours and lack of social life."

5. So the business analyst – who has a degree in chemistry and biology from King’s College London – quit and is now applying to join a training course to become a science teacher. The City is a major employer of science graduates. As it cuts back on jobs, and as more people like Baldwin become disillusioned with the financial sector, the numbers of science teachers are set to soar as stockbrokers and analysts quit their Ferraris and stock options for test tubes and Bunsen burners, say experts.
6. “There is no doubt that the credit crunch has a huge silver lining in terms of science education in Britain,” said Graham Holley, the agency’s chief executive. “It is going to do a great deal of good for the teaching of chemistry, physics and biology.”
7. Science teaching has been a cause of considerable concern for education experts for decades. The City has attracted large numbers who are employed, often with lucrative salaries, as business analysts and IT experts. As a result, fewer graduates with top degrees have become teachers. Physics, chemistry, biology and mathematics classes have suffered and fewer children have been inspired to take up science.
8. Because of this, fewer graduates has meant fewer scientifically trained people available to work for British industry – and not enough good graduates available to become teachers.
9. The British government pledged years ago to halt this trend and has introduced a number of ways of doing so, including increased salaries for science teachers compared with those in other subjects.
10. A total of 3,114 science trainees entered colleges during the academic year 2008-09, a rise of 2.5 per cent on the previous year. “That is the highest number of science teachers since the TDA began 13 years ago,” said Holley.
11. Most of these new recruits have been encouraged by schemes that ensure that salaries start at around £24,000 for science teachers, and can eventually rise to £50,000 for more mature teachers, according to the TDA.
12. It is a reasonable reward, but it certainly does not match what a science graduate can earn in the City, Baldwin stressed.
13. “I will be earning a third of what I would have got had I stayed in the City,” she said. “But money is not everything. Instead of going to work early and leaving very late, I will get a chance to come home and be with my boys, Matthew and Thomas.”
14. “My father was a teacher, so I know what to expect and what I will get out of the job. I know teaching won’t be easy, but I know as well that it can be very rewarding.”

PUPILS REACT TO FRENCH PHONE BAN

'It's pretty easy to talk instead': pupils react to French phone ban
Students and teachers on the new law aimed at detoxing teenagers from their screens

Angelique Chrisafis, 7 September, 2018

1. At the end of lessons at Claude Debussy middle school in Paris, a classical music jingle played instead of a bell and teenagers poured out of the gates. Several 13-year-olds quickly reached into their bags to check their mobile phones, which had been switched off for eight hours.
2. Children's phones have now been banned from all state middle schools in France under a new law that President Emmanuel Macron said would help detox teenagers from their screens.
3. "I thought I would be freaked out but it has been fine," said one 13-year-old girl, who got an iPhone when she was 11. "I left my phone in my bag all day and I was surprised to find it didn't bother me. Normally, I'd be on Snapchat and Instagram. But my friends are here at school so it's pretty easy to just talk instead."
4. She said she would probably use her phone more at home. "My parents don't set rules on phone use but I've made my own rule: I don't check my phone after 11.30pm on a school night."
5. Her friend, also 13, said she liked using her phone for watching shows on Netflix but the school connection was always too patchy for that so she used to look at photos and listen to music at break time. "I haven't found it hard to ignore my phone this week," she said. "But there is still a physical reflex sometimes to reach for it and get it out."
6. The school in Paris's 15th arrondissement – where 460 pupils aged 11 to 15 come from a mix of high-income backgrounds and poorer families – prepared for the law by introducing phone-free Mondays last term.

7. Previously, staff had noticed that children at break time would mostly be standing in the playground looking at their phones.
8. “About four or five weeks into our phone-free Monday experiment, we saw children bringing packs of cards into school to play in break time,” said the headteacher, Eric Lathière. “We hadn’t seen cards at school for years. Children brought books in to read and pupils stood around chatting far more than they had before.”
9. He said he approved of the new law: “It’s about educating people on phone addiction – and not just children; adults, too. Any moment in the day when you can try to do something without a phone requires an effort but it’s a habit worth forming.”
10. He was adamant, however, that the ban should not be seen as anti-technology. “We can’t go against digital; that would be like trying to keep schools back from the evolution of society. It’s about education around tech use.”
11. The centrist Macron made banning phones in schools part of his election manifesto not long after the New York City mayor, Bill de Blasio, did the opposite, overturning a ban on phones in state schools in 2015, saying parents wanted to keep in touch with their children.
12. The French education minister has called the ban a detox law for the 21st century, saying teenagers should have the right to disconnect. Children’s phones were already banned in classrooms – except for teaching purposes – but under the new law, they are banned everywhere inside the gates, including playgrounds and canteens. The French senate expanded this to allow high schools to ban phones if they choose but few, if any, are expected to do so. Many suggest 18-year-old pupils with the right to vote can make their own decision on phones.
13. Frédérique Rolet, the secretary general of the SNES-FSU teaching union, said the first week of the ban appeared to have gone smoothly but stressed the law wasn’t a monumental change: 60% of state middle schools had already decided in recent years to ban phones from playgrounds.
14. “The education minister sought to appeal to parents, saying he was aware of the problem of phone addiction,” she said. “But there are other important problems, such as growing class sizes, job cuts and the lack of teaching staff, which also need to be talked about.”
15. Schools that had previously banned phones said they had noticed more social interaction and empathy between children, and a readiness to learn at the start of lessons.

16. Jean-Noël Taché, the headteacher of a middle school with 800 pupils in a small town in rural Aveyron, has just introduced the phone ban. “There had been so much media talk about it that pupils and families were well prepared,” he said. “It’s as if children not using their phones at school has simply become habit.”
17. Previously, his pupils could use their phones at break time. “But we’d noticed that little by little, the phone use was moving from the playground into the hall, then into the corridors, the lunch queues, outside the classroom door. Pupils weren’t making calls; they were sending messages, playing on or looking at their phone – it was like it had become an extension of their hand.”
18. In Paris, Michèle Bayard, a modern literature and language teacher, said she hadn’t noticed pupils complaining about the ban. “This could bring a focus on new activities and interaction.”
19. But at the school gate, a 14-year-old girl felt more credit should be given to teenagers. “There is this idea that our generation can’t concentrate or has lost the ability to socialize. That’s not true,” she said. “When I’m with friends, showing them a picture on my phone or looking something up just adds to our conversation. It’s a shame that I can’t do that inside school anymore.”

Lesson 9

Topic: Mass Media - Journal vs. Magazine Article

Warm-up

Prepare series of magazines and journals for participants to work with.

Write on the board:

Magazine article

Journal Article

Ask participants to brainstorm as many ideas as possible related to each section.

Write participants' responses under each title.

Task 1

Get participants into pairs

Distribute text about "Magazines vs Journals" to each pair.

Ask them to draw a Venn Diagram in their notebooks and ask them to fill in it while reading the text.

Magazines vs Journals

A magazine is a periodical aimed at the general public, which contains news, opinion and personal narratives. Journals are scholarly periodicals aimed at researchers or specialists.

One can come across many differences between a journal and a magazine. Most people easily understand the articles in a magazine where as only those who know the subject that is being discussed understand the articles in a journal.

While a journal contains original research articles, magazines contain articles pertaining to current events or general interest topics. The articles in a journal contain an abstract and a bibliography. But a magazine article does not come up with abstracts and bibliographies. When journals contain elaborate write ups and provide in-depth knowledge of the topic, the articles in a magazine are brief and gives broad overviews of the topic written.

Coming to the publication, journals are published monthly or quarterly and magazines are published weekly or monthly.

When one compares the authors of a journal and a magazine, the former gives authors credentials and the later may or may not name the writer. Though a writer in a magazine could be a professional, he may or may not be an expert of the subject that he handles.

The language used in both the journal and magazine is also different. The language of journals is aimed mainly at the scholarly people with special terminology and jargons. A prior knowledge is required to understand the language used in journals. On the other hand, the language used in a magazine is understandable to every one. They are written in very simple language keeping in mind both the scholarly and the common man.

A jury of experts always reviews a journal article before it is published. But the articles in a magazine are generally reviewed or edited by the staff editors and not by experts.

One can also come across difference in the lay out. An article in a journal begins with an abstract of the contents. It contains conclusion, bibliography, charts, graphs, but rarely contains photographs. Meanwhile, magazines have eye-catching articles, including illustrations and photographs. While the journals cite sources, the magazines rarely come up with such a thing.

When magazines are profit making, the journals are meant for research purposes. As such the journals have only a few advertisements while magazines will have extensive advertisements, which are their source of income.

in it.

Ask participants to summarise the text.

2. Why is it important to read the abstract of a scholarly journal article first?
 - a. The article explains the data gathered from the research, so it clarifies that information for you.
 - b. This section is close to the article's beginning and will explain what type of research the author did and what participants were supposed to do.
 - c. The abstract explains the results listed in charts and tables and helps you understand how specific conclusions were made.
 - d. The abstract is the summary of the article and it helps you decide if it's relevant to what you're researching and tells you what the article will be focused on.
 - e. None of the answers listed

OLYMPICS: USAIN BOLT TAKES OLYMPIC GLORY WITH NEW 100M WORLD RECORD

Will Buckley

1. “We’ve never seen anything like that before,” was the verdict of the great Olympian, Michael Johnson, after a breathtaking 100 metres final. Usain Bolt was so far ahead of the rest he had time to slow down and smile for the cameras before crossing the line in a world record time of 9.69 seconds, beating by three-hundredths of a second the record he had set 11 weeks ago. He looks unbeatable.
2. The rest were nowhere. A fifth of a second behind – a long, long way in sprinting – was Richard Thompson of Trinidad and Tobago. With Tyson Gay having failed to make the final, the best American was Walter Dix, who took bronze in 9.91 sec. Asafa Powell and Michael Frater, Bolt’s Jamaican compatriots, were fifth and sixth respectively, a distance behind the unbelievable Bolt.
3. This event is top of the bill and, for that reason, it is also the race most likely to disgrace the sport. If the fastest man in the world is a cheat, who cares about, or for, the rest? The 100 metres is the diva event. It makes or breaks the show. Recently, the Games have been broken. Of the previous four winners, Justin Gatlin and Linford Christie subsequently failed drugs tests. This meant that, inevitably, some would be looking at yesterday’s encounter with suspicion. The world record holder, Bolt, former world record holder, Powell, and world champion, Gay, are the three fastest men of all time and, uniquely, they were on a collision course.
4. There was some talk of people needing to go as low as 9.6 in order to win it, which was tantalizing, except 20 years ago Ben Johnson had gone as low as 9.7, running quicker than anyone – until yesterday – had managed in an Olympics since. Of course, Johnson then lost his gold medal after testing positive for drugs.
5. In the semi-finals Bolt was slowly away, slow at the finish and still won in 9.85, exactly the time the now-banned Justin Gatlin had run to win in Athens in 2004. He was a tenth of a second ahead of college champion Dix in second, a margin he would more than double in the final. Even then, Bolt looked sensational, unbeatable, scarcely credible. Imagine what he might achieve if he broke into a trot.
6. His path was eased when Gay, suffering from injury, did not even break 10 seconds and missed a place in the final, which went instead to his compatriot, Darvis Patton. Powell won his semifinal easily in 9.91 and the final of the 100 metres had become a Jamaican contest. They even had a third finalist in Frater who, along with two Trinidadians, two Americans and the man from Netherlands Antilles, completed the field. Six from the Caribbean, two from the United States.
7. As the competitors appeared for the final, hundreds of cameras flashed round the stadium to create a twinkling star effect. The backdrop was near perfect, the stadium being the greatest in modern Olympics, in a Games that may be remembered as much for its architecture as its athletes. Bolt was in lane four, jiggling around at the start. Powell, impassive, was three lanes to his right. In between were Thompson and Dix. This, surely, would be where the medals would be contested. The introductions to the most explosive event in all of sport were made. Bolt smiled, pointed and made the archer sign. Powell swung from side to side as if in a trance. The drums rolled. Bolt continued jiggling; Powell remained impassive.

8. Silence, and then bang! Before anyone, least of all Bolt, could breathe, he had streaked away to win. Astonishingly, the first man to break 9.7 seconds eased up towards the end. Like a jockey astride a wonder-horse, he even took a quick look over his shoulder in the last five metres. "I could see him slowing down ahead as I was still pumping away," said Thompson. If the semi-final was scarcely credible, this was even less so. Bolt, having produced the most electric 100 metres performance for 20 years, contented himself with hitting his left breast and then disco dancing around the stadium.
9. "It was expected," said the Jamaican team doctor, Herb Elliott. "I don't know how fast he can go; his coach doesn't know how fast he can go; he doesn't know how fast he can go." He went on to say that Bolt had been tested half-a-dozen times in Beijing. It was a historic night for Jamaica, who has long aspired to win the diva event. In 1952, Herb McKenlay lost the closest 100 metres in history, now Bolt had won the easiest. For a country of two-and-a-half million they have undoubtedly produced a disproportionate number of top quality sprinters. Yet this was the first time their efforts had been rewarded with 100 metres gold.
10. Asked why he slowed down, Bolt said: "I wasn't interested in the world record. I didn't even know I had it until after the victory lap. This medal means a lot to my country, and to me." Explaining the archer sign, he said: "I just like to have fun. I like dancing."
11. Far from a breakfast of champions, Bolt had given the meal a miss and had nuggets for lunch, rested, and then had nuggets for tea. It was a nugget diet which had led to a golden performance. The history, however, casts its shadow. Johnson's downfall was tragic: if anything were to be awry with Bolt, it would be farcical.

FREERUNNING JOINS SPORT ESTABLISHMENT

Esther Addley

Five years ago, outside Liverpool Street station in London, a group of 13 young men gathered for what was, at the time, the biggest meeting of freerunners in history. The sport, in which participants perform balletic leaps and flips using walls, bars and any other street furniture available, was still in its earliest infancy, mushrooming spontaneously across Britain among young people who had seen films of the French urban sport Parkour and wanted to adapt it into a freer and more expressive form.

How times change. Last night, the once underground pursuit declared itself firmly in the sporting establishment by holding its first world championships, hosted in one of London's top venues, sponsored by a major credit card company and filmed by Sky Sports.

"I never, ever thought we'd get to this place so quickly," said John Kerr, or 'Kerbie', one of the event's organizers. Present at that inaugural gathering at Liverpool Street, he finds himself, at 21, one of the sport's elder statesmen. He said: "We all feel amazingly blessed. Freerunning is so young and so new. A few years ago we were getting chased by police on a regular basis and property owners would shout at us. Now they pay us to come and perform on their properties."

Fifty feet above him, one of the event's 23 competitors was warming up by balancing in a handstand on the edge of an enormous black box, part of the equipment on which he would later compete, before flipping on to a nearby bar, spinning around it, and dismounting. Below him, his peers – those not already performing 'gainers' and 'loser flips' and 'layout backflips' from a lattice of steel poles – murmured approvingly. The sport might be said to combine the best qualities of gymnastics, cat burglary and teenage mucking about, but the skill of the participants is unarguable.

Few underground activities can claim to have made it into the mainstream with such dazzling speed. Many participants trace the birth of freerunning to a BBC ident (a TV station's symbol or logo, often accompanied by music, a jingle or an animation) in 2002, showing a Parkour runner adapting his skills on the rooftops of London.

Urban Freeflow, the sport's central organization, was founded a year later. Though closely related to Parkour, which originated in the Paris suburbs a decade ago, Parkour prizes speed and efficiency of movement, in contrast to the expressiveness of freerunners. As such, though it is practised worldwide – last night's competitors hailed from 17 countries – freerunning could reasonably be described as a brand new British sport.

Urban Freeflow now trains the Metropolitan police and Royal Marines, as well as organizing workshops in schools, and estimates that 15,000 people now practise the sport in Britain (95% are male).

The organization choreographed action sequences for the films Casino Royale, The Bourne Ultimatum and 28 Weeks Later, and also performs at public events.

As the founder of Urban Freeflow and the organizer of last night's competition, Paul 'EZ' Corkery could be considered the grandfather of freerunning – at 34, he considers himself retired. He is in discussions with the 2012 Olympic organizers over how freerunning might be involved, perhaps in the opening ceremonies, or in workshops.

“The organizers are really eager to collaborate with anything that gets the kids off their arses,” he said. Does he see a day when freerunning might be an Olympic sport? “I don’t really think it fits. You’d need to put in place a national governing body, things like that, and it would kill the sport, really.”

“These guys are my YouTube idols, it means everything to be here with them,” said Franck ‘Cali’ Nelle, from France. “I’m not really thinking about winning. It’s just being here alongside the best of the best. The first ever freerunning world championships? That’s a big event. That’s something for the history books.”

1st case. How to take an interview and bypass competitors? A premiere of the film with participation of a star of Hollywood is being passed in your city. You are the young, vigorous journalist constantly working over yourself. You know several foreign languages and have finished courses on psychology of the person. You work in one very popular publishing magazine. You know that in department where you work, the hidden conflict between employees for the right to interview influential people takes place. One of employees is you. All employees of your organization show identical level of the professional skills, comparable experience and formation. Before your department there is problem, to achieve an audience and to make the interview with the protagonist (leading character) of the film.

In the meantime, employees of other well known magazine had undertaken the attempts of a meeting with a star too. Advantage of this magazine before yours is that the star had already given the interview to this publishing house before. Having made monitoring of interest of your potential respondent, you learnt that both of you have identical preferences in meal, as well as he is found of riding as you.

After conversation with the editor-in-chief and offers to interview a star you understand that he actually is interested in other journalist.

However, you have all possibilities to convince star to come to you.

Questions and tasks:

1. How will you act in such situation?
2. How do you use language skills and knowledge received on courses?
3. As you are a young woman will you apply the female charm persuading the chief to allow to interview to you?
4. How will you motivate the respondent on conversation with you?
5. How will you eliminate competitors not only from your department, but also from other magazine?
6. Whether the information about celebrity's preferences will help you?

VI. ГЛЮССАРИЙ

Academic controversy	A form of debate in which students work co-operatively to consider alternative sides of an issue before reaching consensus.
Academic language proficiency	Ability in language skills needed for mastering academic material; pertains to both written and oral language.
Accountability	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Research conducted by classroom teachers, often concurrent with their teaching. 2. Assessment processes provide information to parents, students, systems, institutions and other stakeholders and may be open to public scrutiny. For accountability purposes it is the professional responsibility of schools and teachers to ensure that assessment procedures are appropriate, transparent, equitable and inclusive of all learners.
Action research	A cyclic research process where an identified problem or question is systematically investigated within a specific context and the findings are utilised to improve and/or change practice, and to formulate further questions for investigation.
Active citizenship	Programs that assist students to understand and act upon democratic values such as the rule of law, equality under the law, democracy, freedom of opinion and a tolerant, fair and inclusive society. Examples include celebrating Harmony Day, Student Representative Councils, Peer Support programs, students as volunteers and students working to solve real-life community problems. For further information
Active listening	An instructional skill where group members <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> listen to the speaker as if they are walking in their shoes <input type="checkbox"/> listen with all their senses <input type="checkbox"/> let the argument or presentation run its course without interruption <input type="checkbox"/> encourage the speaker's train of thought <input type="checkbox"/> actively respond to questions and directions <input type="checkbox"/> use their body language to show they are listening.
Activity setting	Context in which teaching occurs (home, softball field, classroom, etc.).
Assessment	Assessment is the process of acquiring information and making judgements about students' learning. The purposes of assessment include the following:

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> to assist student learning related to outcomes, <input type="checkbox"/> to make judgements about students' achievements, <input type="checkbox"/> to evaluate the effectiveness of teaching programs, and <input type="checkbox"/> to inform decisions about students' future learning. Some people broadly distinguish between formative and summative assessment.
Authentic assessment	Authentic assessment is linked to a teaching and learning program that seeks to provide contextual tasks in a supportive environment so that the learner can be given feedback about their progress.
Backward design	An approach to teaching for understanding in which the understandings of the unit are decided upon first, then used as a basis to determine appropriate assessment methods to demonstrate those understandings, and finally the learning experiences that will be needed to enable students to develop and demonstrate the identified understandings.
Benchmark	A benchmark is a designated standard of performance. It may be described qualitatively or as a location on a measurement scale. The Department uses its Literacy and Numeracy monitoring test results to report to the Commonwealth on the percentage of students achieving National Benchmarks in Years 3 and 5 reading, writing and numeracy. These benchmarks were originally described qualitatively, but they have since been located on measurement scales.
Bias	Bias occurs when the assessment process lacks objectivity, fairness, or impartiality in some way. This may disadvantage or discriminate against an individual or group of students. Bias may take the form of flawed assessment tools, design, procedures, analyses or reporting processes. Unbiased assessment is inclusive and works towards equitable outcomes for all learners.
Bilingual education	Broad term denoting programs for students with limited or no proficiency in the language of instruction (English in the U.S.). Programs generally use students' home language for academic and language arts instruction while students are acquiring proficiency in English for academic purposes. In some programs, home language use is limited to 2 or 3 years and ultimately discontinued; in other programs, home language is used for extended periods with the goal of promoting proficiency in both languages.
Bilingual	Ability to use 2 or more languages in oral and/or written proficiency	form; proficiency can vary from beginning to advanced levels and can be at the same level in both languages or at different levels in each language.

Blog	The term blog comes from web log, which is an online personal diary or journal. Blogs are generally available for the public to read and to enter comments about the daily entries or postings. Blog content ranges from personal activity, often on a daily basis, to political, technical, and educational and other special-purpose content.
Bloom's Taxonomy	A tool for categorizing the level of abstraction of questions. Questions are categorized according to six levels: knowledge, comprehension, application, analysis, synthesis and evaluation.
Brainstorm	An instructional tactic used for group problem-solving that involves the spontaneous contribution of ideas from all members of the group.
Bundling	Uses inductive thinking and is a tactic in which ideas or responses are grouped or 'bundled' into various categories decided upon by the students or participants.
Calibration	Calibration is a process for locating the difficulties of items (and standards) on a measurement scale. In terms of the Essential Learning Outcomes, it involves the calibration of the Standards, investigating their relative difficulty on measurement scales.
Card cluster	A card cluster is an effective way of grouping ideas. Individually or in groups, students write one idea on a card. The cards are grouped to create a visual display.
Carousel sharing	This strategy allows all groups to share at once their group work products. It also gives students in the 'reporting' position a chance to practice their presentation skills several times. Groups display their work on their tables or wall. One or two group members stay with the display to explain the work and answer questions. Groups rotate on around each of the stations viewing and discussing each other's work. This strategy is similar to gallery walk.
Choral/montage poem	A collection of words and/or phrases selected and arranged to create a poem to be performed by a group.
Closed questions	Questions that can be answered with a single word or phrase. For example: How many days are there in a week?
Community of inquiry	'Community of Inquiry' is central to the understanding of Philosophy in Schools. The focus is on listening, thinking, challenging and changing viewpoints within a safe environment in which students can take risks in their thinking. Logic and reasoning underpin ideas as each member of the community challenges the thoughts expressed by others.

Concept attainment	Concept attainment was examined by Jerome Bruner in Beyond the Information Given (1974). It assists us to understand that there are different classes and categories of objects and to identify and recognise how we can distinguish what does and does not belong. For further information on developing the strategy view Bruner's concept attainment.
Fair	A fair assessment is valid reliable and unbiased.
Concept map	Concept maps are tools for organising and representing knowledge. They illustrate concepts and the relationships between them. These links are indicated by words that specify the relationship between two or more concepts. Concepts maps provide a process for students to build their understanding by progressively adding information and increasing the complexity of the links. They can be used for formative and summative assessment.
Concept mapping	Concept mapping is a technique for representing related concepts in visual form. A series of networks and nodes are used to explain the links between different concepts.
Contextualize	to put a word or activity, particularly a new one, into a familiar context.
Criterion referenced assessment	Criterion referenced assessment is the performance of an individual as measured against a standard or previously established criteria rather than against performance of others who take the same test.
Criterion referencing	Criterion referencing is the reporting of performances in terms of specified learning objectives (criteria).
Culminating outcomes	Culminating outcomes describe a small set of valued learning performances linked to each of the Essential Learning . They represent the teaching and learning goals towards which education is working.
Culminating performance	A performance designed to exhibit deep understanding which takes place at the culmination of a unit of work. In The Teaching for Understanding Framework , this can occur as a more complex performance within the unit, giving students a chance to synthesize understandings having completed introductory and guiding performances.
Data retrieval chart	An effective way of sorting information and enabling students to recognize patterns in data. Charts are set up as grids, with headings for each row and column. Headings might take the form of questions, topics or sources of information.

Diagnostic assessment	Diagnostic assessment is a type of formative assessment particularly intended to diagnose areas of weakness, or misunderstanding, and strength.
Discipline	A body of knowledge to which a particular set of principles, key questions and methods of testing assumptions are attributed.
ELL, English language learner	Student whose first language is not English and who either lacks proficiency in English or has beginning level proficiency in English.
Enterprise learning	Enterprise learning involves students in designing, producing and marketing a product or service. Students work with the wider community, business or industry to create or produce something that is tangible and real.
Evaluation	Evaluation is the process of gathering, measuring, interpreting and using information to make educational decisions or judgments. The term 'evaluation' is usually used to describe a reasoned judgment about the effectiveness of a learning sequence or a program.
Exemplar	Exemplars are samples of work that demonstrate the essential characteristics of performance to meet particular standards or criteria. They are frequently used in assessment against rubrics.
Exhibitions	Exhibitions are substantial products or presentations, which are often complex public performances showcasing student learning and competence. They may be judged by an expert panel and can incorporate judgements from a range of sources including learners, peers, educators, parents and others.
First language	A student's first language, generally the language spoken at home.
Fishbone	A particular type of concept map which is often used to demonstrate cause and effect.
Fishbowl	This strategy help focus the attention of students as observers, while others model a process or product. Have some students sit centre-stage (in the 'fishbowl'), while other students observe the action from outside the fishbowl.
Formal assessment	Formal assessment is structured and recorded assessment.
Formative	Formative assessment is used to monitor learning assessment	progress during a learning sequence. It provides continuous feedback to teachers and students, which enables them to monitor progress and identify and address errors in learning. Because formative assessment is primarily directed towards improving learning, the results are typically not used for assigning awards.

Forum theatre	A scene is enacted in front of a group. At any time during the drama, observers or actors can stop the performance to ask for assistance or change the focus of the action. Observers may step in and add or take over an existing role.
Funds of knowledge	The intellectual and social knowledge existing in families and communities.
Futures wheel	This is a graphic organizer that places a future event in a circle in the centre of a document. Consequences from this first event are placed in a second ring of circles, then a third, and so on. The futures wheel identifies expanding consequences.
Gallery tour/walk	Select one person to display the item. Select a second person to stay with the display and give a one minute overview while other groups come and listen. After two rotations select another group member to give the overview.
Generative topic	A significant topic, issue, concept or 'big idea' which provides depth and rigour, multiple connections and different perspectives required to support students' development of powerful understandings. A generative topic is typically central to one or more of the disciplines, interesting to both teachers and students, accessible and supports inquiry based approaches to learning.
Graffiti	A cooperative learning strategy that facilitates brainstorming. Graffiti can also be used as a group energizer.
Graphic organiser	A tool which organizes information in visual form. There are many different types of graphic organizers including concept maps, fishbone maps, flow charts, KWLs and timelines.
Guiding question	Questions that aim to develop deep understanding through an inquiry mode of learning. They are open-ended, non-judgmental and provide a relevant inquiry context rather than content as a basis for the construction and selection of learning experiences.

Higher-order thinking	Thinking that occurs at higher levels of abstraction. In Bloom's Taxonomy it indicates thinking that takes place at the analysis, synthesis and evaluation levels.
Hot-seating	A dramatic technique used to deepen understanding. An individual sits in the 'hot seat' and is asked questions which they answer from the point of view of the role they are enacting. For example, they may take / play the role of a character from a book or a movie.
Individual professional learning plan	An individual teacher's plan for organizing and managing their professional learning so it meets individual, school and system needs and priorities.
Inductive thinking	One of the two broad methods of logical reasoning - the other being deductive thinking. Inductive thinking uses a 'bottom up' approach moving from specific observations through to broad generalizations and theories.
Informal assessment	Teachers and students use informal assessment opportunities to make incidental and immediate judgments and provide feedback about student learning. Informal assessment is frequently used for formative assessment purposes.
Integrated units	Integrated units use an approach that is interdisciplinary and uses basic content, processes, pedagogy, assessment strategies and topics of shared interest in authentic and cohesive ways.
Interdependence	A student learning culture needs to move from dependence to independence to interdependence. Students operate interdependently when they understand the need to work together in a community of learners to accomplish tasks.
Inquiry-based learning	An inquiry is a systematic investigation into an idea or issue. Inquiry-based learning encompasses the processes of posing problems, gathering information, thinking creatively about possibilities, making decisions and justifying conclusions.
Inside/outside circle	Inside/outside circles is a tactic that facilitates dialogue and builds community. It involves placing students in two circles, one inside the other, with each student in one circle facing a student in the other. A facilitator asks students to discuss a problem or a question. The student on the outside tells the student on the inside how they would attempt to solve it, then the outside person extends the thinking. The outside student then rotates one to the left or right continuing the discussion or starting a new.
